Love God - Follow Jesus - Invite All

Anniversary Event—August 20th

The Board of Stewardship has a fun event for the 65th Anniversary! We will gather on August 20 after service in the Fellowship Hall. You can test your knowledge of people from the Bible with a fun game called Who Am I? Names from the Bible will be written on name tags and placed on your back, so you don't know who you are! You will then ask yes or no questions to others around you to see if you can guess who you are! There will also be an opportunity to write letters to the residents at the Alden Poplar Creek community. As a thank you for spending time celebrating Prince of Peace's 65th Anniversary, you will receive an Angel keychain as the giveaway item.

FEED MY STARVING
CHILDREN

The Board of Serving Ministries invites all members of the congregation to join us in volunteering for a packing shift at Feed My Starving Children on:

Wednesday, July 26 - 7:00 - 8:45pm
740 Wiley Farm Ct, Schaumburg

No experience necessary. If you haven't volunteered there before, each session begins with a video, orientation, and then an opportunity to join the warehouse crew that replenishes supplies and moves filled boxes, labeling crew (a non-strenuous seated task), or on a team performing any of several different tasks associated with filling & sealing bags with the 4 ingredients of Veggies, Vitamins, Soy, & Rice that make up MannaPack™ - Rice. This fun, uplifting volunteer experience fosters volunteer teambuilding while changing lives of children worldwide with scientifically formulated nourishment. The Board of Serving Ministries chose to give POP's fiscal year-end discretionary benevolence of $250 to this organization that will use all of it to purchase food ingredients which are funded only from donations.

Contact Andy Schuetze at ajschuetze2001@gmail.com or 224-412-2828 for questions or more information.

To sign up to join us, go to <http://www.fmsc.org/join-group?joincode=L3GY3D>.

Pastor's Perspective

by Pastor Erin Clausen (she/her)

Shout with joy to the Lord, all the earth!

Psalm 100:1

As we head into August, I wonder what you're looking forward to this month. What expectation do you have about where you might find joy? I imagine that some expect continued warm summer days for swimming or hanging out in the backyard (or the air conditioning!). Others probably consider that children return to school this month with the promise of a new routine. Others may be planning a vacation or upcoming celebration. For others, this month might not hold something 'special,' but even then joy comes – perhaps in waking to sunny mornings or splashing in puddles during a downpour. In everything that happens, God gives us the opportunity to experience joy. The question is, do we expect joy – do we notice joy – do we shout for joy? This year's Vacation Bible School used Psalm 100:1 to remind campers that the joy we share shines the love of Jesus to others. This verse invites us to join others and all of creation to SHOUT for joy to the Lord. Shouting for joy does not have to depend on the circumstances around (or even within us). Rather than simply an emotion, joy arises out of the spiritual discipline of gratitude. Even in the midst of hardship and heart-ache, joy may bubble up, reminding us of God's love and care. When it does, the psalmist tells us – shout for joy!

We don't always have to shout about God's presence in our lives. We absolutely can praise God silently. We can quietly share a place we've noticed God's presence and the joy that presence brings. When we SHOUT, though, it does something to our bodies, emotions, and souls. We take up more space, we breathe more deeply, we may even feel the tingle of excitement as we share joy. With this sharing, others receive permission to experience and share joy, too. Others may experience God's love through our expression of joy. Our shouting for joy shines the love of Jesus into others' lives.

This month, I invite you to expect to experience joy. Seek joy, notice joy, and share joy with one another. No matter what other expectations you have, and no matter whether or not they come to fruition, expect to experience joy. Practice gratitude and hope in God's providence. Be courageous to share your joy as an expression of your faith. Join in, as we Shout for joy, all the earth!

Board of Stewardship

By Wil Damico

I need to start this month's Board of Stewardship article with a disclosure that the author of this article is approaching year 35 of a career as an Environmental Engineer because the topic this month is Environmental Stewardship. Genesis 1:26 (in the NIV translation) says: "Let us make mankind in our image, in our likeness, so that they may rule over the fish in the sea and the birds in the sky, over the livestock and all the wild animals, and over all the creatures that move along the ground." However, there is controversy over the translation of the Hebrew text to the English word "rule." Other translations use the word "dominion."

Since other texts in the Bible make it clear that God retains ownership over all of creation, I think it is a reasonable interpretation that this passage should be interpreted more as stewardship in the sense of caring for creation with rights to take from the fruit of creation to meet mankind's needs.

In doing my little bit of research for this article, I found this YouTube video: Biola University Environmental Stewardship lecture. Biola University is, as best as I could find, a conservative leaning Christian University with the goal of encouraging Biblical interpretation. The video is worth the 30 minutes to watch it if you want to hear a deeper look at environmental stewardship from a biblical perspective.

I'm going to skip ahead a bit now and get to the part where I presume you are convinced environmental stewardship is important and want to know what we should do. I'm going to skip the public policy issues and go to where I think the rubber meets the road, what we can do individually. While there are probably many books on the subject, I'm going to give a few practical tips:

1. The most environmentally friendly car trip is one you don't take. Whenever possible, meet your transportation needs by public transit, walking or bicycling (or a combination). When you do need to drive, combine your trips as much as possible.
2. Cut down on your use of single use plastics as much as possible. While technically being recyclable, very little plastic gets recycled and the rest ends up in our landfills and water systems with the result that you probably eat a credit card's worth of plastic a week and the only way to effectively stop this is to not dispose of plastic.
3. Use less water, especially water that goes down the drain. It takes a tremendous amount of energy to prepare the water for human use and then treat it post use so even here in the Great Lakes area where availability is not a big issue, consumption still creates problems.
4. Make efforts to reduce your personal energy consumption such as around your home, especially during periods of peak demand (i.e. hot afternoons in the summer). Setting your thermostat a degree or two higher in the summer and lower in the winter helps as does adjusting the thermostat during periods when you aren't home.

Note that many of these changes are not only green in the sense of the environment but also in the sense of your wallet. For many years, my habit of meeting local transportation needs with a bicycle enabled our family to have one less car saving us over $5,000 a year.

There is a lot more we could teach each other on this topic. If you are interested in forming a group to research and discuss this further, I would invite you to send an email to bdstewardship@princeofpeace.net.

Music Notes...

by Scott Uddenberg

"What Wondrous Love is this, O my Soul, that caused the Lord of bliss to bear the dreadful curse for my soul." from "What Wondrous Love is This" North American folk hymn, music by W. Walker

I just returned from my wondrous week in Philadelphia at the bi-annual conference of the Association of Lutheran Church Musicians. The week was full of worthwhile, fulfilling, blessed and memorable experiences. I would like to share a few of them. Tina and I arrived in Philly on July 4th, the anniversary of one of its most historic days. Philadelphia has an interesting juxtaposition on this day, a national holiday, walking the city it was hard to find an open shop or restaurant, as most were closed for the 4th. We did find a pub where we had pasta, salad, and local beer on tap with the Phillies on the television. It left no doubt as to where we were. In contrast that evening, the city put on a huge party, with thousands gathering for a concert and fireworks just outside the steps that Rocky ran up in his first movie. In the interest of self-preservation, we watched fireworks from the comfort of our hotel TV and window. The full conference began on Wednesday. The conference theme was inspired by the hymn quoted above, What Wondrous Love is This. Days included morning prayer, a plenary session, a lunch gathering in addition to workshops, and evening services. The plenary session was given by Dr. Mark Miller, a professor of church music at Drew University and Yale University and minister of music at Christ Church (UCC) in Summit, NJ. He has also composed countless hymns and anthems. His focus was on the word "What" in the hymn title. Dr. Miller allowed his music to speak on how all of us are children of God. Miller was noticeably moved by a room full of Lutheran musicians singing his music. He shared impactful stories of his experiences being a child from parents of mixed-race backgrounds raised as an adopted son in a family led by a Methodist minister. He shared his story of coming out as gay to his adopted father in the early 1980's and of the unconditional love of his adopted parents. He told of the surprised reaction the congregation gave to his first time playing in a Black Baptist church having never been exposed to that culture's musical background. His music and his story were inspirational.

Daily workshops covered topics like Pastor-Cantor relationships, learning more about All Creation Sings, touring the famous organ at the former Wanamaker department store (now Macy's), and piano and organ repertoire sessions. Workshops included one on technology and worship and realizing what a wonderful job our tech team has done to be at the cutting edge of producing online our worship, another on new handbell repertoire where my bell choir would have been entertained watching their director ringing bells! It was comforting to find that our integration of musical worship styles is right in line with some of the most forward-looking Lutheran congregations. A highlight of any of these conferences is the worship experiences. I was able to experience worship at some of the most historically significant church buildings in Philadelphia including Christ Church near Independence Hall (constructed in the 1700's), Church of the Holy Trinity on Rittenhouse Square (credited as the first church to have O Little Town of Bethlehem performed), and St. Mark's Episcopal (gothic style architecture connected to a well-known Philadelphia architect). I got to lift my voice up at reading sessions of new choral music, attend a magnificent performance of Choral Arts Philadelphia (who performed recently discovered compositions from Giacomo Carissimi who dates from the 1600's), listen to an impromptu organ recital, and shop a room full of publisher vendors where I found new books for my library by wonderful Lutheran musician/authors Paul Westermeyer, Weston Noble and Carl Schalk. We also made time for socializing and walking around the city center of Philly. The other highlights were enjoying breakfast every morning with my dearest Tina, catching up with Doug Williams and Anne Organ, and having dinner with dear friends, Trisha and Steve, including watching their daughter play bass guitar in a performance of the musical Tick, Tick... Boom!

There is much to process from this trip and its influence will be felt in my worship planning for months to come as I include new music and new ideas into what we do at Prince of Peace. I believe the greatest gift from this trip was the sense of calm and peace I felt, the lack of rush and hustle that normally comes from daily life. The full schedule, yet slower pace of this trip was a refreshing change. Come ask me about it! This recap is the tip of the iceberg. I can tell you about the day Tina and I got soaked in the rain, about airline delays, and a jazzy morning worship if you want to hear about them! Soli Deo Gloria

Watching kids shine - a Steller VBS!

By Emily Uddenberg

You know how you do something over and over again, it's very familiar and can become easy. It's only when your perspective of said action changes that the familiarity leaves you. I have done several sessions of Vacation Bible School over the years as a participant, junior crew leader and musical leader, and crew leader. This year I changed it up - I told Ms. Julia Schuetze that I would share my skills in any way she needed me to. So, I ran the video session a handful of times during the week, and my perspective of VBS was VERY new and took me a minute to adjust.

For those of you who have led VBS sessions, you know there is an element of improvisation involved. Mostly due to the variety of ages that attend VBS. Our three- and four-year-olds have a different experience than the 10-11 years old. There is what the script says, and then there is the practical expectation of what can be taught in just 20 minutes. It felt like doing a cold reading for an audition - you are handed words to say, and someone says go and you create a scene on the spot with as much ingenuity as possible in that moment. I do not know if VBS would be as successful without the help and moral support of my teen leaders (and all the kids who were in leadership positions).

Even though I stayed in the same role for most of the week, I enjoyed being able to connect with all of the crews throughout the week. Day 1 and 2 everyone was getting to know each other, day 3 and 4 is the peak of fun, and by day 5 everyone's a little bit sleepy but sad VBS is over. The participants this year jumped in feet first almost immediately. Everyone sang the songs and danced on the set up in the front, had insightful questions, and prayed loudly with all their hearts. It was such a joyful experience to watch everyone shine. In all of the ways that everyone experienced VBS, there was something special for everyone as we left at the end of the week.

I am so proud of Julia, by the way. Her confidence, preparation, knowledge of the program, organization, patience, and sense of chill were present in all the things. Part of my job is to encourage our youth to embrace leadership positions and support them in these endeavors. Julia Schuetze is a wonderful example of the kind of kid that Prince of Peace can send out into the world and do amazing things. It is up to all of us to continue that trend. And I know it's possible, because through Christ all things are possible.

Stephen Ministry Is it Going to Rain? by Janet Ichida

Gather together so I can tell you what will happen to you in future days.

Genesis 49:1b

The last thing I do each night before I head up to bed is ask Alexa about the next day's weather. It's not as if I have big travel plans or an outdoor event in line, I just want to know what is up. At my ripe age of 65.9999, I still get out my clothes for the next day. Once upstairs, I have Siri check my calendar for the next day. Perhaps I am meeting with the President or having lunch with the latest celebrity. Right! Instead, if anything, I find out the newest doctor appointment or PT visit for Bob. What an exciting life we live! Our calendar boasts the usual events, nothing noteworthy to any of you. When visiting my daughter Stephanie, I am floored by the busyness that fills her days. With two active teenagers, she is forever transporting to baseball games and swim meets. Add to that the practices that go with those gatherings, work, and scouts that finish out most days. Those grandsons keep her busy. (You did know I was a grandma, didn't you?) I don't know how young families manage. My daughter loves her planner even though she can easily remember the biggies listed. (Don't ask about my memory because I can't remember it!)

I don't know why I have this need to know what is on the schedule for the next day. After all, I love the spontaneity a day brings as long as I can plan it. I want to know if a front will pass by causing achy joints and a hobbled gait. I try to dress a wee bit nicer if I will be seeing a physician. Alexa and Siri are two of my best friends! (My bestest buddy is Amazon Prime.) Any sudden changes of plans are generally negative ones with trips to the ER suddenly part of the day. I don't think I am too unique about wanting to know what the next day will hold. You probably do the same. I don't need to know specific dates of the years ahead, just give me reminders of new appointments.

It feels good to be in control. We all like to pretend that our decisions impact the dates ahead. Roller coasters bring that crazy pit in our stomachs because we don't know what lies ahead. Yet there is a fine line between being in control and knowing all the specifics ahead. Are you worried about that strange lump in your body? Do you need to know why your parent is acting so differently lately? Will you be part of the layoffs planned by your company? When will you find the perfect job or home? These questions plague many of us.

If you mumble some of these concerns each night before you go to bed, maybe a Stephen Minister would fit right on your calendar. You get to plan the whole meeting – date, time, location, even what you will talk about. Let one of us know if you want Stephen Ministry to be part of your plans.

Another way Stephen Ministry can be an integral part of your future is to sign up for our upcoming class. Any of the leaders listed below would love to fill you in on more specific details. Classes start in the fall and we need you! Please join us for a weekly class lasting until spring! Help keep our program vibrant!

Early Childhood Programs at Prince of Peace

By Michelle Heberling

Summer comes and summer goes. As much as I love my summers, I always find it so exciting to prepare for the start of school. We look forward to seeing familiar faces as well as welcoming new families to our school. My summer has been filled with extra family time, preschool summer camp, studying 2 Peter, a family trip to Mexico, summer concerts, and projects around the house. It has been such a blessing, but I look forward to getting back into a regular routine.

Our summer camp has been a huge success this year. This year we offered camp 3 weeks, Monday – Friday from 9:00 – 2:30. Each week was a different theme – boats/water, camping, and food. It has been a ton of fun!

I hope and pray that you are all enjoying the summer months by taking in a concert, a farmers' market, a baseball game...or whatever brings you joy!

Registration for 2023-2024

Registration for the upcoming school is well underway and we feel the excitement as our program continues to take in registrations. We have 2, 3, and 5 day options available for 2 1/2 – 5 year olds. Please visit our website for offerings at www.princeofpeacepreschool.net.

Read To Learn Adult/Literacy Volunteer Program

Read To Learn (RTL) is an adult literacy program offering free adult reading classes at Prince of Peace and other locations throughout the community. In RTL, adult volunteer tutors implement prepared lesson plans for English-speaking adult learners in a one-to-one-in-person instructional setting. Prince of Peace hosts this program twice a year. Each semester involves 10 weeks of classes.

Fall semester will begin on September 5, 2023, from 12:30pm to 3:00pm. Testing for students will be held at POP on Tuesday, August 22 at 12:30pm. Training for returning volunteer tutors will be held at Forest View Education Center on Friday, August 18, 2023, from 9:45am to Noon. New Tutor Training will be held on Saturday, August 19, 2023, from 8:30am to Noon.

School Supplies Collection for Lutheran Social Services of Illinois

LSSI depends on the generosity of congregations in Illinois to provide backpacks and school supplies for children in foster care, and Prince of Peace has partnered with LSSI for many years. Our VBS families have already donated some of the supplies below and gotten us off to a good start. But the needs are great, especially for backpacks.

Our collection this year will be from July 30 to August 6 and includes:

*backpacks , especially the large, sturdy ones	pencils
*gift cards to Target or Walmart so that the older kids can purchase what their school and grade level require-- $10.00 to $20.00	pencil sharpeners
colored pencils	children's markers (not permanent markers and not dry erase markers)
crayons—24 per box	erasers—large, usually pink
pens—black, blue, red	pocket folders
	glue sticks (not glue bottles)

*Starred items are the most needed

All donations must be new and unused. They can be dropped off in the bin marked "LSSI School Supplies" in the Fellowship Hall on Sunday mornings, or in the church office during office hours.

If you are unable to shop, you may participate by sending a check payable to Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, annotated "LSSI school supplies". Your donation will be used to purchase the needed items. The checks must be received at church on or before August 6th.

The collection ends August 6th. Our donations will be picked up the week of August 7th, to allow enough time to distribute them to the children before school starts on August 21st.

Contact Chris Chason at 847-882-0982 with any questions.

Prince of Peace Book Club Meeting August 25, 2023

The Prince of Peace Book Club will meet at 10 AM, August 25, 2023 in the CLC.

Two women. Two flights. One last chance to disappear.

Claire Cook has a perfect life. Married to the scion of a political dynasty, with a Manhattan townhouse and a staff of ten, her surroundings are elegant, her days flawlessly choreographed, and her future auspicious. But behind closed doors, nothing is quite as it seems. That perfect husband has a temper that burns bright and he's not above using his staff to track Claire's every move.

What he doesn't know is that Claire has worked for months on a plan to vanish. A plan that takes her to the airport, poised to run from it all. But a chance meeting in the airport bar brings her together with a woman whose circumstances seem equally dire. Together they make a last-minute decision.

The two women switch tickets, with Claire taking Eva's flight to Oakland, and Eva traveling to Puerto Rico as Claire.

The Last Flight by Julie Clark is the story of two women—both alone, both scared—and one agonizing decision that will change the trajectory of both of their lives.

If you have any questions, please call Kathy Tweeten at 847-971-0192 or email kat8@aol.com.

PADS Update - August 2023

Journeys has successfully transitioned 178 people out of homelessness into permanent or supportive housing—they are now off the streets. Funding was also obtained to keep 75 clients in the hotel program this summer until the start of the PADS season in October. Area churches will open their doors to serve warm meals and provide a safe haven for the homeless to spend the night. Journeys also continues to work on opening its overnight shelter for the homeless in our community. Volunteers will be needed this fall to drop off warm meals at the new building in Palatine. More details and sign ups for food will follow in upcoming weekly church emails.

Anyone interested in more information on this ministry can visit www.journeystheroadhome.org or contact Bonnie Wagner at 630-220-1034 or bbonsai@icloud.com.

Why The Electronic Version of the Tidings is BETTER?!?!

There are plans to stop “snail mailing” the Tidings...before that happens, please change your Tidings “subscription” to electronic. There are many benefits to receiving the Tidings electronically. It has color photos and graphics, hot links connected directly to the information in the articles, links to emails referenced (you can click and respond directly, if desired), it is sent on Monday so it arrives in your email box almost a week ahead of the printed version in your mailbox and finally it will reduce costs to POP.

Please email church.news@princeofpeace.net with the email address you'd like us to send your electronic Tidings to. You may call the church office with questions.

Adult Learning Opportunities

(Meeting locations may change)

Passages will meet on the 1st & 3rd Thursday evenings beginning in the fall at 6:30 p.m. Contact Karen Wagner at wagner@princeofpeace.net for questions.

Men's Bible Study Group meets on Mondays at 7:00 p.m. in Room 213 and virtually. Contact Tom Pfeifer at jets820@comcast.net.

Rebekah Circle - meets the 3rd Wednesday of the month at 1:30PM. Next meeting will be Wednesday, September 20th at POP. Please contact Pam Johnson with questions.
